"New Criminal Law focuses on justice rather than punishment."

- Amit Shah, Union Home Minister

It gives us a great pleasure to present this comprehensive booklet titled "Empowering Women through Justice". This joint effort between the Gender Resource Centre, Gujarat and the Gujarat State Legal Services Authority intends to give information about various offences committed against women; punishment provided for offences; rights provided to victims of crime and most importantly redressal agencies existing in State of Gujarat for atrocities subjected to women.

The three transformative criminal laws—Bharatiya Naari Suraksha (BNS), Bharatiya Naari Suraksha Shakti (BNSS), and Bharatiya Sakshya Adhikaar (BSA)—are designed to address gender-based violence, promote women's participation in the legal system, and expedite access to justice for women.

This booklet serves as an important resource for legal professionals, law enforcement agencies, activists, students, and the general public to better understand the provisions and implications of these new laws. It aims to bridge the knowledge gap regarding the legislative steps taken to address the specific challenges women face in accessing justice and to ensure that women's voices are heard, respected, and protected.

This booklet provides a clear and accessible explanation of the provisions under the following three new criminal laws:

1. Bharatiya Nyay Shahita, 2023
2. Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita (BNSS), 2023
3. Bharatiya Sakshya (BS) Adhiniyam, 2023

By bringing together the expertise, this initiative reflects our collective commitment to fostering an inclusive, just, and equitable society. We firmly believe that these laws are vital in addressing the existing challenges and injustices that women face, and by creating awareness about these provisions, we hope to inspire confidence in the legal system.

Disclaimer: This publication is for academic purpose only and is intended only to provide guidance to important stakeholders about relevant provisions about new laws, important judgments and necessary details for invoking prosecution or making dispute resolution. The content of the same cannot be cited as rule of law before any authority.

MESSAGE

The true measure of a just society lies in the justice, dignity and empowerment it brings to its women. Ensuring gender justice is not merely a legal obligation but a moral and social imperative that shapes the foundation of an equitable and progressive nation.

It is with great appreciation that I acknowledge the efforts of the Gujarat State Legal Services Authority [GSLSA] and the Gender Resource Centre [GRC] [Women and Child Development Department, Government of Gujarat] in bringing forth this invaluable resource "Empowering Women Through Justice". This booklet is more than just a compilation of legal provisions; it is a beacon of awareness, enabling women to understand and assert their rights with confidence. By elucidating the evolving legal landscape, particularly the newly enacted criminal laws, this compilation strengthens the framework for protection, redressal and justice for women. Most importantly, it gives victims the contact details of the agencies that can help them.

The release of this compilation coincides with the inauguration of a Victim Assistance and Empowerment (Victimology) Centre namely "SANGATHI", as a one-stop centre for victims of crimes and vulnerable individuals aimed at providing legal, psychological, emotional and social support, there by fostering heal-up, empowerment and reintegration into society. The dedication of GSLSA and GRC in promoting legal awareness and accessibility to vulnerable section of the society is commendable. Their collective endeavour would help in bridging the gap between the written law and its real-world implementation, ensuring that justice is not just a concept but a lived reality for all. This resource will serve as a ready reckoner for Para Legal Volunteers (PLVs) and a valuable tool in ensuring that legal knowledge reaches those who need it most, enabling informed decision-making, strengthening support systems, and fostering a more just and inclusive society.

As we move forward, let us reaffirm our collective commitment to empowering women, upholding their rights, and creating an environment where justice is not a privilege but a promise fulfilled. I extend my heartfelt congratulations to all those involved in this initiative and pledge my unwavering support to all endeavours aimed at strengthening justice and equality for all.

MESSAGE

No democratic society can achieve social, economic and political progress unless half of its population that is women are accorded equal opportunity of learning, earning and participating in every activity. Though significant positive developments are seen as regards women empowerment in all facets one must confess that we need institutionalized mechanism and convergent efforts to empower women from the offending acts committed against her; for restoring her skills and for assuring her mainstreaming in the society post any criminal act, she is subjected to.

"EMPOWERING WOMEN THROUGH JUSTICE" is a joint endeavor on the part of Gujarat State Legal Services Authority (GSLSA) and Gender Resource center (Women and Child Development Department, Government of Gujarat) wherein key information about the new Criminal Laws as regards protection, safety and redressal of women victim are narrated with landmark case laws. The book is navigated in such a fashion that it provides information about the provisions of law, the regulations and rules made for availing remedies and the agencies which can be contacted for redressal. It is an ideal compilation for students, law professionals, NGOs, litigants and research assistants. As an Executive Chairman, GSLSA I must say that there is no better way to commemorate International Women's Day than the release of the book.

I take this opportunity to appreciate the efforts made by Officers of Gender Resource Center and my team of GSLSA led by Member Secretary. I am sure this book would serve as ready reference to any women.

I extend my best wishes to all and assure full support to any cause for women empowerment

Regards.

Dear Readers,

It gives me immense pleasure to introduce our latest endeavor, a collaborative initiative of the Gender Resource Centre, Women and Child Development Department (WCD), and the Gujarat State Legal Services Authority titled: "Empowering Women through Justice".

This comprehensive booklet is a testament to our unwavering commitment for empowering women by ensuring access to justice and legal awareness. It delves deeply into the critical sections and provisions of three pivotal new criminal laws that hold transformative potential for the protection and empowerment of women.

This publication stands as a bridge between the legal framework and its beneficiaries, shedding light on how these laws can serve as tools of empowerment. It is crafted to cater to diverse stakeholders—legal practitioners, students, activists, policymakers, and the general public—ensuring a wider reach and greater impact.

It is believed that legal awareness is the first step towards achieving a just and equitable society. This initiative reaffirms our collective responsibility to empower women by fostering knowledge and ensuring access to justice for all.

I extend my heartfelt gratitude to the Hon'ble Mrs. Justice Sunita Agarwal (Chief Justice, Gujarat High Court), Hon'ble Mr. Biren Vaishnav (Hon'ble Judge, Gujarat High Court) & Gujarat State Legal Services Authority for their invaluable collaboration in bringing this initiative to fruition. Their expertise and dedication have been instrumental in shaping this resource.

I invite you to explore this publication, reflect on its insights, and join us in our mission to create a safer, more equitable environment for women. Together, let us work towards a future where justice is not just a privilege but a right for every individual.

Warm regards,

AN AUTONOMOUS BODY ESTABLISHED BY GOVERNMENT OF GUJARAT, INDIA

Dear Readers,

It is indeed a great to introduce to you our latest publication, "Empowering Women through Justice," prepared in collaboration with the Gujarat State Legal Services Authority. This work represents a significant step toward fostering awareness and understanding of critical legal provisions that uphold the dignity and rights of women in our society.

The publication meticulously covers the essential sections and provisions of the three new criminal laws that aim to protect and empower women. It provides a detailed analysis of these laws and highlights the landmark judgments that have shaped and strengthened their interpretation. These insights serve not only as a guide to understanding the laws but also as a tool to empower women to exercise their rights and seek justice when needed.

At the Gender Resource Centre, our mission has always been to create an equitable society where everyone, irrespective of gender, can thrive with dignity and respect. This publication is another stride in that direction, aiming to inform, educate, and empower women, legal professionals, policymakers, and all stakeholders committed to gender justice.

I hope this book will serve as a valuable resource in advancing your knowledge and encouraging meaningful discussions on the intersection of gender and law. Your feedback and reflections will be crucial in helping us further refine our efforts and address pressing issues that affect women's lives.

I extend my heartfelt gratitude to the Hon'ble Mrs. Justice Sunita Agarwal (Chief Justice, Gujarat High Court), Hon'ble Mr. Biren Vaishnav (Hon'ble Judge, Gujarat High Court) & Gujarat State Legal Services Authority for their invaluable insights in this endeavor and to all the contributors who made this publication possible.

Together, let us continue our journey toward justice, equality, and empowerment. With warm regards,

Director, GRC

ARIEL VIEW OF NEW CRIMINAL LAWS

1.1 Bharatiya Nyaya Sanhita (BNS), 2023

The Indian Penal Code (IPC), enacted in 1860, stands as one of the most important and comprehensive legislative frameworks in India. Drafted by the first Law Commission under the leadership of Lord Macaulay, the IPC aimed to establish a uniform set of criminal laws applicable across the Indian subcontinent. Before its introduction, India was governed by a patchwork of personal laws, customary laws, and regional codes, which often led to inconsistencies in the legal system. The IPC was designed to cover a wide range of criminal offenses, from theft and assault to more serious crimes like murder and fraud. The goal was to create a uniform legal framework for all of India, irrespective of caste, religion, or region, ensuring fairness in the administration of justice.

Over time, as India gained independence in 1947, the IPC remained largely unchanged but came under scrutiny as new societal issues emerged. One of the key reasons behind this evolution was the growing awareness of women's rights, the need for modernizing legal processes, and the expansion of technology, all of which demanded an update to the IPC. The 1960s-1980s saw limited amendments addressing specific crimes such as cheating, misappropriation of property, and wrongful confinement. However, a significant change came in the 1990s, when a greater emphasis was placed on gender-related offenses following growing awareness of crimes like sexual harassment and dowry deaths. This led to the inclusion of new provisions such as the Dowry Prohibition Act (1961) and later, the Prevention of Domestic Violence Act (2005).

The early 2000s marked a pivotal moment in the IPC's evolution, as the country grappled with emerging crimes like terrorism and cybercrime. In 2008, the Mumbai Terror Attacks led to the introduction of stronger anti-terrorism laws, with specific provisions added to the IPC to handle terrorist activities and related offenses. The amendment strengthened the penal framework for national security crimes and introduced the Unlawful Activities (Prevention) Act (UAPA) to combat terrorism.

The most notable changes to the IPC occurred after the infamous 2012 Delhi Gang Rape Case, which sparked nationwide protests and demands for stricter laws to protect women. This led to the Criminal Law (Amendment) Act, 2013, which introduced significant reforms to sexual offense laws, adding harsher punishments for crimes such as rape, sexual harassment, and stalking. It also recognized new forms of sexual violence, including acid attacks and marital rape. This amendment marked a turning point in addressing gender-based violence and reinforcing the legal provisions that sought to safeguard women's rights.

Further changes to the IPC continued into the 2020s, driven by a growing emphasis on digital crimes and cyber security. With the rise of the internet and social media, crimes such as online harassment, cyber bullying, and data theft became prevalent. These issues were addressed by introducing specific provisions for cybercrimes, updating laws to regulate the misuse of technology in criminal activities.

In 2023, the BNS (Bharatiya Nyaya Sanhita) was introduced, aiming to replace the IPC with a more comprehensive, modern penal code. The BNS 2023 strives to make the criminal justice system more accessible, efficient, and aligned with global standards of human rights. It seeks to address emerging challenges, such as hate speech, cybercrimes, and terrorism, while ensuring quicker trial procedures and more emphasis on victim rehabilitation. This new version of the penal code highlights a progressive shift, aiming to ensure that justice is not only fair but timely and sensitive to the needs of a rapidly evolving society.

The evolution of the IPC, from its inception in 1860 to the proposed BNS 2023, reflects India's growing commitment to ensuring justice, equity, and safety for all its citizens. As society changes, so too must its laws, and the IPC's journey illustrates the need for continuous reform in the face of emerging social, technological, and political challenges.

The Bharatiya Nyaya Sanhita (BNS), 2023, seeks to replace the Indian Penal Code (IPC) of 1860, marking a historic shift from colonial-era legislation to laws that better reflect the values, needs, and challenges of modern India. This introduces stringent provisions to tackle heinous crimes such as rape, mob lynching, and organized crime while addressing emerging concerns like cybercrimes and gender-based offenses. By focusing on harsher punishments, gender justice, and time-bound investigations, the BNS emphasizes a justice system that is swift, equitable, and aligned with societal progress. With explicit recognition of marital rape, expanded definitions of sexual offenses, and provisions for victim compensation, this law aims to protect the dignity and safety of all citizens, especially women and marginalized groups.

1.2 Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita (BNSS), 2023

The Criminal Procedure Code (CrPC), originally enacted in 1861, has been a cornerstone of India's criminal justice system, guiding the processes of investigation, trial, and punishment in criminal cases. The first CrPC laid out the basic framework for handling criminal procedures in India. Over time, it evolved to ensure greater fairness and efficiency in the judicial process. The most significant transformation came in 1973 when the CrPC of 1973 replaced its predecessor, introducing a more structured and systematic approach to criminal law. It aimed to balance the rights of the accused with the need to bring offenders to justice, and over the years, it was amended to address emerging issues such as terrorism, organized crime, and witness protection.

As India modernized and faced newer challenges in law enforcement, the CrPC was increasingly seen as inadequate to address contemporary concerns, particularly in terms of the growing complexity of crimes, the rights of citizens, and the role of technology in crime commission. Several amendments were made to the CrPC, notably regarding time-bound investigations, protection of victims, and digital evidence. However, there was still a growing demand for a more comprehensive and structured framework that could cater to the evolving dynamics of criminal law in the country.

This led to the introduction of the Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita (BNSS), 2023, a proposed overhaul of the existing criminal law framework in India. The BNSS was designed to address the limitations of the CrPC and other criminal laws by introducing more robust measures for the protection of citizens, ensuring speedy justice, and integrating modern investigative techniques such as forensic science and digital forensics. The BNSS seeks to modernize the criminal justice system by introducing provisions for stronger deterrents against crimes like cybercrime, organized crime, and terrorism, all of which were not fully accounted for in the older frameworks.

One of the main driving forces behind the BNSS is the need to address rising concerns about the efficiency of law enforcement agencies, delays in trials, and the inadequacy of existing laws to deal with new-age crimes. The BNSS seeks to streamline procedures, empower law enforcement, and expedite the judicial process, thus ensuring that justice is delivered swiftly. It also emphasizes the protection of citizens' rights, aiming to improve victim compensation, witness protection, and the use of technology in criminal investigations. Furthermore, the BNSS takes into account global standards of justice and aims to make the Indian criminal justice system more transparent and accessible.

In essence, the BNSS, 2023, marks a significant step forward in the evolution of India's criminal justice system, building on the foundation laid by the CrPC and other earlier laws, while addressing the new challenges posed by a rapidly changing society. The envisions a more effective, equitable, and modern approach to criminal justice, ensuring the safety and security of Indian citizens in the 21st century.

1.3 Bharatiya Sakshya Adhiniyam (BSA), 2023

The Indian Evidence Act, 1872 was enacted during British colonial rule to consolidate and amend the law relating to evidence in India. Drafted by Sir James Fitzjames Stephen, the Act sought to provide a uniform code to regulate the admissibility of evidence in courts. It established clear guidelines for both civil and criminal cases, specifying what constitutes valid evidence and how it should be presented in legal proceedings. The Act was a pioneering step in establishing a scientific and rational approach to the judicial process in India, reflecting British legal principles and practices.

The Indian Evidence Act, 1872, initially served as the backbone for the Indian judicial system, introducing significant concepts such as the burden of proof, admissibility of hearsay, and the rules regarding witness testimony. It set out categories of evidence such as oral, documentary, and real evidence, with an emphasis on the competency and credibility of witnesses. Over time, the Act underwent several amendments to address the changing needs of society and the judiciary. These amendments focused on incorporating modern technologies, updating the rules of evidence, and safeguarding the rights of the accused.

The Bharatiya Sakshya Adhiniyam 2023 (Indian Evidence Act 2023) is the most recent iteration in this long journey. This reform emerged in response to the challenges posed by the digital age, evolving societal norms, and the need for a more inclusive and robust legal framework. The rise of digital evidence and technological advancements in communication required a new approach to address the authenticity and admissibility of such evidence. The growing prevalence of cybercrime, the use of social media in both criminal and civil cases, and the increasing role of electronic devices in investigations, made it clear that the existing framework of the Indian Evidence Act was insufficient to address these modern challenges.

The Bharatiya Sakshya Adhiniyam 2023 introduces significant changes to adapt the legal system to these modern realities. Key provisions include clearer guidelines for the admissibility of electronic records, including emails, social media posts, and other forms of digital communication. It strengthens the protection of digital privacy while also creating provisions for better transparency and accountability in the use of digital evidence in court. Additionally, the reform emphasizes the need for a more comprehensive approach to witness protection, recognizing the changing nature of testimony and the challenges posed by online harassment and intimidation.

The need behind this evolution was driven by the recognition that the Indian judicial system must keep pace with technological developments and societal changes. As the country modernized, traditional methods of evidence and trial procedures were becoming outdated. The BSA 2023 aims to bridge this gap by incorporating contemporary challenges and providing a more equitable framework for justice. This shift is not only a response to the digital revolution but also an effort to ensure that the evidence presented in Indian courts is both reliable and relevant to the modern world.

In summary, the Indian Evidence Act, 1872, laid the foundation for the legal system's approach to evidence, while the BSA 2023 represents a significant overhaul to address the technological and social changes of the 21st century. This evolution reflects the Indian judiciary's ongoing commitment to justice, transparency, and adaptability in a rapidly changing world.

GENDER DISPARITY - CONCERN FOR INDIA

What is gender inequality?

Gender inequality is discrimination on the basis of sex or gender causing one sex or gender to be routinely privileged or prioritized over another.

- Gender inequality is a pressing issue in Indian society. Despite a constitution that guarantees equal rights for men and women and decades of legislation, some deep-rooted gender discrimination in India takes a brutal toll on women's lives. Even after rapid economic growth, gender disparities remain all too familiar: 1,000 girls die each day before reaching the age of five due to neglect.
- India has been ranked low on various indices that measure gender equality — including economic participation and opportunity; educational attainment; health and survival; political empowerment; and legal protection — due to multiple factors such as high levels of women discrimination in India as well as various discriminatory social norms, laws and cultural practices. Some of the key areas or examples of gender inequality in India where women face discrimination include less access to education and employment, under-representation in political positions, poorer health and nutrition than men, and the most obvious violence against women.

While deeper analysis of the problem may cause disagreement with respect to the relative importance of various causes and therefore approach to the solution, it is necessary to bring together the major issues that contribute to making gender inequality in India as deep and widespread.

Legal Provisions

CONSTITUTION OF INDIA

The constitution of India made things a little easier for women in terms of gender equality. The term gender equality in the Constitution is mentioned in its Preamble, Fundamental Rights, Fundamental Duties and Directive Principles of State Policy. The Constitution not only guarantees women's empowerment but also encourages the State to adopt various measures of equality and empowerment in favor of women.

- Article 14
- Article 14 of the Indian Constitution talks about equal status or equality before the law. Every person has equal status before the law and the State cannot deny it.
- Article 15
- Article 15 prohibits discrimination on the grounds of religion, race, caste, sex and place of birth. This Article cannot prevent the State from making any special provisions for women and children.
- Article 16
- Article 16 states that there shall be equal opportunity for all citizens of India in matters of employment or appointment to any office.
- Article 39
- According to Article 39 of the Constitution, the State shall make sure that men and women have an equal right to an adequate livelihood, there is equal pay for men and women, the economic system does not result in the concentration of wealth and the material resources are distributed to serve a common purpose.
- Article 42
- The State shall secure humane conditions for work and for maternity relief according to Article 42 of the Constitution.

The Need for Awareness

- Women are treated as second-class citizens in India, and the situation is getting worse. The country's record on gender equality is dismal. According to a report by the World Economic Forum (WEF), India ranked 134th out of 145 countries for gender parity in 2018, down from 130th in 2017.

- Without a doubt, this is a wake-up call for all of us. We all have to join hands and help women overcome these discrimination crises. We need to create awareness among Indian women about their legal rights. Additionally, we need to bring about a change in the mindset of people, especially men, who still believe that women are inferior to them. We need to inject the concept of women's empowerment into everybody's minds. We have built a result-oriented process of enhancing and promoting the social, political and economic status of women. Majorly, we have to work on five main concerns-
- Give women access to education just like men
- Give women opportunities to be in power and achieve economic success.
- Stop the violence and sexual assault against women.
- End child marriages
- Aware women about women's rights in India
- Most importantly enacting legislations for uplifting the women and making amendments periodically in said statutes.

Crimes Against Women: Bodily harm

Rape: (Sec. 63)

This provision corresponds to Section 375 of Indian Penal Code (IPC). Comprehensive definition of offence of rape has been provided in the statute. The definition lays down essential elements to constitute the offence of rape. Under section 64 and 65, provision for punishment of offence of rape has been prescribed.

Important facets of provision

- In Bhartiya Nyaya Sanhita (BNS), specific punishment is provided for aggravated forms of rape like rape with women under 16 years and below 12 years of age.
- Rape resulting in death or persistent vegetative state is also severely punished (Section 66).
- The provision of gang rape upon a woman and a minor provides for very severe punishment (Section 70).
- All the provisions provide minimum punishments.
- Provisions are made in Bharatiya Nagrik Suraksha Sanhita (BNSS) to cater needs of victim of rape.
- Under Section 69 of BNS, new provision is inserted whereby a sexual intercourse by a male with a female by employing deceitful means or by making promise to marry to a woman without any intension of fulfilling the same is made punishable.
- The punishment for repeat offenders has also been enhanced (Section 71).
- Disclosure of identity of victim in certain cases has also been made punishable (Section 72 and 73).
- Exception 2 to section 63 of BNS provides that sexual intercourse or sexual acts by a man with his own wife, the wife not being under 18 years of age, is not rape. Under section 375 of IPC the age limit was 15 years.
- Section 65 of BNS combines both age categories (under 12 and under 16) into a single section, simplifying the legal framework.
- Death sentence was provided under section 376DB of IPC for gang rape of woman under 12 years of age. No death penalty was provided for gang rape of woman aged below 16 but above 12 in section 376DA. Now, section 70(2) of BNS provides death penalty for Gang rape of woman under 18 years of age.

Important judgments on the subjects by Constitutional Courts -

- Tukaram and Ganpat v. State of Maharashtra (1972) (1979) 2 SCC 143

This case is also known as Mathura rape case. The trial court in this case, acquitted the accused, holding that the complainant's consent was voluntary since she was accustomed to sexual intercourse. The Bombay High Court set aside the judgment and sentenced the accused. However, Supreme Court (SC) acquitted the accused which was debated at public in large and gradually reformatory set of precedent was pronounced by the Hon'ble Apex Court.

- State of Punjab v. Gurmit Singh (1984): (1996) 2 SCC 384

The Supreme Court advised the district judiciary not to describe a victim as having a loose character even if she is shown to be habituated to sex.

- Delhi Domestic Working Women v. Union of India (1995) 1 SCC 14

The SC laid down important guidelines in this case:

- ✓ Providing legal representation to complainants of sexual assault cases.
- ✓ Ensuring legal assistance and guidance of a lawyer at the police station.
- ✓ Maintaining the anonymity of the victim in rape trials.
- ✓ Establishing a Criminal Injuries Compensation Board.
- ✓ Providing interim compensation to rape victims.
- ✓ Providing medical help and allowing abortion if the victim becomes pregnant due to the rape.

The Supreme Court laid down guidelines to prevent sexual harassment at workplaces, in the absence of a legislative framework.

- Vijay Jadhav v. State of Maharashtra and Anr (2013)(2019) 19 SCC 567

This case is also known as Shakti Mills rape case. The Bombay High Court declared Section 376E of the IPC, as constitutionally valid.

- Mukesh & Anr. Vs. State for NCT of Delhi & Ors. (2017) 6 SCC 1

This case is known as Nirbhaya rape case. The Supreme Court upheld the death penalty awarded to the accused and stated that the case fell under the “rarest of rare” category. This incident brought the 2013 criminal law amendment.

- State of Maharashtra Vs. Prakash 1993 SUPP(1) SCC 653

The Supreme Court held that creating fear in the mind of the victim and coercing her into having sexual intercourse would also amount to rape.

- Phoolsingh Vs. State of Madhya Pradesh [2021 SCC Online SC 1153]

It is held that sole testimony of prosecutrix once is found to be reliable and trustworthy without any further corroboration conviction of accused can be sustained.

- Bhikhubhai Galbabbhai Korot (Chaudhary) vs. State of Gujarat 2018 (0) JX GUJARAT 154

With amended definition of rape, even the defence on the part of appellant of non-penetration of his penis or in capacity to insert his penis into vagina without admitting would have no barring.

Criminal Force and Assault against Women:

Over and above, the offences that are penetrative in nature, BNS makes provision for non-penetrative offences as well whereby accused with his conduct causes harassment to women victim. Most of these provisions were also there in IPC. The important categories of offences causing harassment to women are depicted below:

- Criminal force and assault against women (Sec. 74) was earlier defined under section 354 of IPC.
- The provision by and large makes the offence of criminal force and assault with the same essential elements.
- The new law provides punishment for criminal force and assault with an intent to outrage the modesty of a woman (Section 74)
- It also provides for severe punishment for Sexual Harassment (Section 75).
- It makes provision of punishing use of force with an intent to disrobe a woman (Section 76).
- Practice of Voyeurism i.e. watching other people engaged in intimate activity (section 77), stalking (Section 78), use of words, gesture or act with an intent to insult the modesty of women (Section 79) are also made punishable.

Above provisions are made in the BNS over and above the civil remedy in form of filing complaint under Sexual Harassment of Women at Workplace (Prevention, Prohibition and Redressal) Act, 2013.

Some of the key decisions on the subject by the Constitutional Courts are as under.

What are Landmark Cases on Criminal Force and Assault against Women?

- State of Maharashtra v. Madhukar Narayan (1991) 1 SCC 57

The Supreme Court of India defined the term "outraging the modesty of a woman" and held that the act must be of such a nature that it is likely to or actually causes an offence to the modesty of a woman.

- State of Punjab v. Major 1967 AIR 63

This case clarified that touching a woman's waist does not per se amount to an offence under Section 354, as the offence requires a specific intent to outrage modesty.

- State of H.P. v. Mango Ram 2000 AIR SC 2798

The Supreme Court held that forcefully pulling a woman's clothes amounts to an assault with intent to outrage modesty under Section 354.

- Vishaka v. State of Rajasthan (1997) 6 SCC 241

It is though not directly linked to Section 354 IPC, this landmark case addressed the issue of sexual harassment in the workplace. The Supreme Court laid down guidelines for preventing and redressing instances of sexual harassment (Vishaka Guidelines), which later led to the enactment of the Sexual Harassment of Women at Workplace (Prevention, Prohibition, and Redressal) Act in 2013.

Offences relating to marriage:

Even in a contemporary India, married women are subjected to various offending acts by her in laws, particularly her husband. For securing social justice parliament has framed special enactments for prevention of different kinds of offences like domestic violence, sexual harassment at workplace, prevention of prenatal techniques, etc. Since inception, apt provisions with respect to offences relating to marriage have been made in IPC and the same have been replicated in BNS.

- Dowry Death was earlier define Under Section 304-B of IPC which has been incorporated under Section 80 of Bharatiya Nyaya Sanhita, 2023 (BNS).
- Further, as per BNS, cohabitation caused by man deceitfully has also been made punishable (Sec.81)
- Bigamy is made punishable under section 82 of BNS.
- Marriage ceremony fraudulently gone through without lawful marriage is made punishable under section 83.
- Enticing or taking away or detaining with criminal intent a married woman is punishable under section 84.
- Similarly, kidnapping, abducting or inducing the woman to marry is an offence under section 87.
- Most important provision is cruelty meted upon a married woman by her husband and in-laws is provided in section 85 of BNS.
- One of the important point to be noted here is that in the corresponding section of Indian Penal Code section 498A cruelty formed part of the explanation, but under the BNS it is defined separately under section 86.
- Another provision of BNS section 89 punishes persons who cause miscarriage without a woman's consent.

Few important judgments are depicted below:

- In Kasuri Vs. Ramaswamy [1978] (1979) 2 SCC 1

It has been held that proof of sexual intercourse can be inferred from facts and circumstances of each case as direct evidence can rarely be proved.

- In the case of Arun Vyas v. Anita Vyas, (1999) 4 SCC 690

The Supreme Court held that the essence of the offence in Section 498-A is cruelty. It is a continuing offence and on each occasion on which the woman was subjected to cruelty, she would have a new starting point of limitation.

- In the case of Manju Ram Kalita v. State of Assam (2009) 13 SCC 330

The Supreme Court held that for holding an accused guilty under Section 498A of IPC, it has to be established that the woman has been subjected to cruelty continuously/persistently or at least in close proximity of time to the lodging of the complaint and petty quarrels cannot be termed as cruelty to attract the provisions of Section 498A of IPC.

- In Alamgir Vs. State of Bihar 1954 SUPP (1) SCC 464

It has been held that the person must know or has reason to believe that the woman is the wife of another person; and the taking, enticing, concealing or detaining of the woman must be with intent that she may have illicit intercourse

The comparative chart depicting the offence and the punishment prescribed for it, under IPC and BNS is reproduced below in tabular form:

Bharatiya Nagrik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023

Provisions regarding maintenance of wives under Bhartiya Nagrik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023:

The provision regarding maintenance of wife which was earlier provided under Section 125 to 127 of the Code of Criminal Procedure has been incorporated under Section 144 to 147 of Bharatiya Nagrik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023 (BNSS). The provision practically remains unchanged. The new law provides for maintenance of wife, children and parents. The default provisions also remain unchanged. The enhancement provisions are also the same.

Hon'ble the Supreme Court of India and various High Courts has time and again protected the rights of a woman in their judicial pronouncements.

- In the case of Bhagwan Dutt Vs. Kamala Devi [1975] SCC (2) 386
It has been held that section 488 (old Cr.P.C.) provides a machinery for summary enforcement of the moral obligations of a husband towards his wife and children so that they may not, out of sheer destitution become a hazard to the well-being of orderly society. It provides a summary remedy and is applicable to all persons belonging to all religions and has no relationship with the personal law of the parties.
- Mohan Kumar Rayana Vs. Komal Rayana [2007] 2010 (5) SCC 657
The Delhi High Court ruled that the quantum of maintenance should be such that the wife lives as she was accustomed to in her matrimonial home.
- Rajnesh vs. Neha [2020] 2021 (2) 324 The Supreme Court of India laid down comprehensive guidelines to calculate the quantum of maintenance under section 125 of the Cr. P.C.

Special provisions under Bhartiya Nagrik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023 regarding women

- Section 49(2) of the BNSS provides that when a female person is to be searched then it shall be made by another female with strict regard to decency.
- Section 51(2) of the BNSS provides that when a female person is to be medically examined then it shall be made only by or under the supervision of a female registered medical practitioner.
- Section 184 of the BNSS provides for medical examination of rape victim.
- Section 183(6) provides for recording of statement of victim of rape preferably by a woman magistrate and in absence thereof by a male magistrate in presence of a woman.
- Section 396 of BNSS provides for victim compensation under the victim compensation schemes.
- Section 394 of the BNSS provides that all hospital public or private shall immediately provide the first aid or medical treatment free of cost to the victims of rape.
- The provisions of section 482 of the BNSS (anticipatory bail) is not applicable to cases of rape under section 65(2) (rape of a woman below 12 years) and 70 (gang rape) of the BNS.

Bharatiya Sakshya Adhiniyam, 2023

Special rules of evidence under Bhartiya Sakshya Adhiniyam, 2023 regarding women

- It is presumed under section 117 of BSA that if a women commits suicide within 7 years from the date of her marriage and that her husband or any relative had subjected her to cruelty the court may presume that the suicide had been abetted by her husband and relatives of her husband.

The section has also been interpreted in Lakhjit Singh v. State of Punjab: 1994 Suppl (1) SCC 173 and Pawan Kumar v. State of Haryana: 1998(3) SCC 309 and Shanta v. State of Haryana 1991(1) SCC 371. Courts have held that from the mere fact of suicide within seven years of marriage, one should not jump to the conclusion of abetment unless cruelty was proved and the court, which has the discretion to raise or not to raise the presumption, because of the words 'may presume', must take into account all the circumstances of the case, which is an additional safeguard. See Nilakantha Pati v. State of Orissa: 1995 CrLJ 2472 (Vol.3). The legal presumption provided in section 113A clearly includes past instances of cruelty spread over a period of seven years (Vasanta v. State of Maharashtra: 1987 CrLJ 901 (Bom)). The presumption, even if it is raised in a given case, is rebuttable: Prem Das v. State of Himachal Pradesh 1996 CrLJ 951 (HP).

- It is presumed under section 118 of BSA that if a person has committed dowry death of a woman and it is shown that soon before her death such woman had been subjected by such person to cruelty or harassment for dowry the court shall presume that such person has caused dowry death.

In Shanti v. State of Haryana (1990), 1991 SCC (1) 334 the Supreme Court decided that Sections 304B and 498A are not mutually exclusive. The Court has ruled that in order to convict someone accused of causing dowry death, the prosecution must present evidence proving that the dowry demand was accompanied by acts of harassment and cruelty. In Satbir Singh & Ors. v. the State of Haryana (2021), SCC(6) 1 the Supreme Court held that the phrase 'soon before' as used in Section 304B of IPC cannot be understood to mean 'exactly before', the judgment stated.

- It is presumed under section 120 of BSA that in a prosecution for rape under 64(2) of Bhartiya Nyay Sanhita where sexual intercourse by the accused is proved and the question is whether it was without the consent of the woman and such woman states in her evidence before the court that she did not consent then the court shall presume she did not consent.

Bharwada Bhoginbhai Hirjibhai vs State of Gujarat in 1983. 1983 SCC (3) 217 In this case, the court settled the legal position on conviction in rape cases based on the sole testimony of the victim. The court held that in Indian society considering the value placed on a woman's chastity, it is difficult to fathom a woman who would lie about the offence of rape.

Hitesh Arvindbhai Vasava Versus State of Gujarat 2016 (0) AIJEL-HC 238454 main ingredient 'consent' is required to be considered in facts of the case - expression, "against her will" means, the act must have been done in spite of opposition of the woman

- Section 48 of BSA specifies that in cases involving sexual offences (e.g., assault, harassment, rape), the character of the victim is irrelevant. Evidence of the victim's previous sexual behaviour is also irrelevant, emphasising the need to protect the victim's dignity and prevent victim-blaming.

Legal Services Authorities Act, 1987

Free Legal Aid to Women under Section 12 of the Legal Services Authorities Act, 1987

1. Introduction

The provision of free legal aid is a constitutional mandate, recognized as an essential step to ensure justice for all, particularly the vulnerable and marginalized sections of society. Women, often subjected to economic, social, and legal disadvantages, represent a key group entitled to free legal aid under Section 12 of the Legal Services Authorities Act, 1987. By addressing the unique challenges faced by women, this chapter outlines the provisions, objectives, and landmark judgments that affirm their right to free legal aid, providing a comprehensive guide to understanding and utilizing these services effectively. Legal aid ensures that women can access justice, safeguard their rights, and actively participate in legal processes without fear of discrimination or financial hindrance.

2. The Legal Framework

Section 12 of the Legal Services Authorities Act, 1987

Section 12 specifies the categories of persons eligible for free legal aid, including: Women, irrespective of their income, emphasizing their right to access justice without financial barriers. The inclusion of women in this section reflects the recognition of their unique challenges in navigating legal systems, often compounded by societal constraints, economic dependency, and lack of awareness. This provision aims to dismantle the barriers that prevent women from asserting their rights effectively.

Victim Compensation to Women

Victim Compensation to Women

1. Introduction

Victim compensation is a cornerstone of restorative justice, aimed at acknowledging the harm suffered by victims and providing them with financial assistance for rehabilitation. Women, being disproportionately affected by crimes such as domestic violence, sexual assault, and trafficking often require substantial support to rebuild their lives. The Gujarat Victim Compensation Scheme, 2019, along with other national provisions, ensures that women victims of crime receive adequate and timely compensation. By addressing their medical, psychological, and financial needs, these mechanisms play a pivotal role in empowering women and ensuring justice.

This chapter outlines the legal framework, objectives, and landmark judgments that affirm the right to victim compensation, offering a comprehensive guide to understanding and utilizing these mechanisms effectively. Additionally, it explores the broader societal impact of these schemes and their role in building a more equitable justice system.

2. Objectives of Victim Compensation

The primary objectives of victim compensation for women include:

1. Rehabilitation: Assisting women in overcoming the financial, physical, and psychological aftermath of crimes.
2. Acknowledgment of Suffering: Recognizing the harm caused and ensuring the state's role in addressing it.
3. Empowerment: Providing resources for women to regain autonomy and rebuild their lives.
4. Access to Justice: Encouraging reporting of crimes by ensuring victims receive support post-incident.
5. Preventive Impact: Deterring potential offenders by demonstrating the state's commitment to supporting victims.
6. Legal Framework for Victim Compensation

3.1. Section 357A of the Code of Criminal Procedure (CrPC), 1973 and Section 396 of the BNSS, 2023

Introduced through the 2009 amendment, Section 357A mandates the establishment of a victim compensation scheme by each state. The provision ensures compensation for victims who have suffered harm due to crimes, even in cases where the offender is not identified or convicted. It empowers courts to recommend compensation during trials or post-acquittals, with disbursement managed by the District or State Legal Services Authorities.

3.2. Gujarat Victim Compensation Scheme, 2019

The Gujarat scheme, notified under Section 357A CrPC, specifically aims to provide financial relief to victims, including:

- Women Victims of Sexual Assault: Compensation for medical expenses, rehabilitation, and loss of income.
- Acid Attack Survivors: Special provisions for reconstructive surgeries, psychological counselling, and rehabilitation.'
- Trafficking and Exploitation Victims: Focused assistance for rehabilitation and integration into society.
- Victims of Domestic Violence cases under IPC/BNS: Compensation for medical and psychological trauma.

4. Key Features of Victim Compensation Schemes.

1. Eligibility Criteria: Victims or their dependents may apply through the District Legal Services Authority (DLSA).
2. Quantum of Compensation: Determined based on the nature of the crime, with detailed schedules outlined in the Gujarat scheme.
3. Application Process:
 - ☞ Submission of a claim application along with supporting documents, including medical reports and FIR copies.
 - ☞ Verification and inquiry by the DLSA to ensure authenticity and evaluate the extent of harm caused.
 - ☞ Disbursal of compensation upon approval, often within stipulated timeframes to avoid undue delays.
4. Interim Relief: Provision for immediate financial assistance in cases requiring urgent medical or psychological aid. This ensures victims are not left vulnerable during the process.
5. Interim Relief: Provision for immediate financial assistance in cases requiring urgent medical or psychological aid.

5. Landmark Judgments Affirming Victim Compensation

5.1. Laxmi v. Union of India [(2014) 4 SCC 427]

In this landmark case, the Supreme Court:

- ☞ Highlighted the need for a dedicated framework for compensating acid attack survivors.
- ☞ Directed states to ensure immediate and adequate compensation to victims for reconstructive surgeries and rehabilitation.
- ☞ This case became a precedent for expanding victim compensation frameworks nationwide.

5.2. Ankush Shivaji Gaikwad v. State of Maharashtra [(2013) 6 SCC 770]

In this landmark case, the Supreme Court:

- ☞ The Court clarified that compensation under Section 357 CrPC is a statutory obligation, not discretionary.
- ☞ It directed trial courts to consider compensation for victims in all cases, particularly where financial harm is evident.
- ☞ This judgment reinforced the importance of victim-centric justice within the legal system.

5.3. Delhi Domestic Working Women's Forum v. Union of India [(1995) 1 SCC 14]

In this landmark case, the Supreme Court:

- ☞ Focused on rape survivors, directing the establishment of compensation schemes and free legal aid cells.
- ☞ Highlighted the need for psychological support alongside financial assistance.
- ☞ This case underscored the need for systemic changes to support women in vulnerable circumstances.

5.4. Nipun Saxena v. Union of India [(2019) 2 SCC 703]

In this landmark case, the Supreme Court:

- ☞ Addressed compensation for child victims under the Protection of Children from Sexual Offences (POCSO) Act.
- ☞ Directed expedited compensation for victims to facilitate recovery and rehabilitation.
- ☞ The judgment emphasized the importance of timely interventions in cases involving minors.

6. Conclusion

Victim compensation is not merely a financial mechanism but a reflection of the state's commitment to justice and rehabilitation. For women victims, these schemes provide a critical lifeline to rebuild lives shattered by crime. By addressing existing gaps, increasing awareness, and ensuring timely delivery, the legal system can uphold its promise of justice and equality for all. Women must be empowered to claim their rightful compensation, ensuring they are not just survivors but thrivers in society.
